Brief Description

The project will contribute to adaptation, transformation and resilience building of affected communities and systems by reducing vulnerability to climate and disaster risk, through provision of integrated and mutually reinforcing upstream and downstream support to address the following constraints: (i) Gaps in policies and legal frameworks for effective integration and funding of CC response actions (ii) Gaps in capacities to implement gender sensitive CCR/DRM policies in a coordinated, inclusive, effective and efficient manner ; (iii) Weak capacities for adoption and adaptation of emerging sustainable natural resources use and management technologies, and methods for low carbon emission and climate change resilience; (iv) Weak public, including private sector and community response to Climate and disaster risks; and (v) Weak capacities to implement the SE4ALL objectives. UNDP will provide timely and quality upstream support to GoTG and stakeholders to address all of the above gaps. In addition, UNDP support will influence the processes of mainstreaming CCA/DRM strategies in national, sub-national, local (and even regional) policies, plans and budgets and other instruments like fiscal and economic instruments to stimulate responsible consumption and production of the natural resource base.
